

Storyboard

Brendon Mustachio

Olivia is on her way to an internship for an LA hospital but is unfortunately behind schedule. The traffic she is in isn't helping her get there any sooner.

Luckily, she can arrive on time, but the parking lot has no empty spaces. Panic begins to set in as she frantically searches for a parking spot for her car. However, this brief panic quickly turns to relief as Olivia takes a deep breath and picks up her phone.

Olivia turns on her phone and activates her online parking app. This app allows her to reserve a designated parking spot for interns to use.

The designated parking spot was open, and she was able to park, walk into the facility, and prepare for her day as an intern. The app allowed Olivia to set up and reserve a parking spot the other day and it made her day so much easier.

The rest of the day was full of learning and experience for Olivia. Attending outpatient clinics and managing patients during surgery. She also assisted in recording vital signs, drawing blood, and laboratory tests.

After a long and informative day as an intern, she learned so much and what she needs to do if she wants to work in a hospital. Her entire internship and potential future job could have been jeopardized if it weren't for the parking app she used.